An in-person workshop was hosted by IESG on 11 September with the NIEC Legal Department about Electoral System Design and the Somali Electoral System, as reflected in the current legal framework. The session provided insights into the different types of electoral systems with presentations on the advantages and disadvantages of the two most prominent electoral systems, Plurality/Majority systems, e.g. First-Past-the-Post and Proportional Representation systems. Follow-up discussions on comparing electoral models and options are planned.

Reflection Session on National Advisors' Support to NIEC

On 18 September, IESG Capacity Building Advisor met NIEC National Advisors to assess the impact of knowledge and skills transferred by the advisors to NIEC staff over the past six years. While significant capacity was transferred, it was noted that the NIEC found it challenging to apply the knowledge and skills gained on electoral operations due to political developments which removed NIEC from involvement in the recently concluded indirect electoral process.

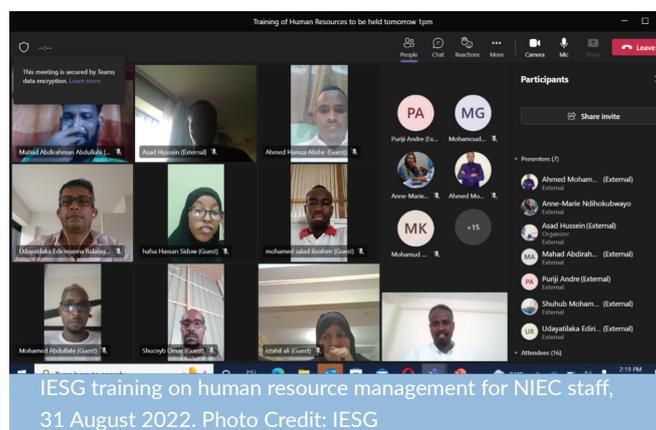

Emphasis was placed on the important role of NIEC in providing technical advice to help the government consider options on the electoral models for the 2026 federal elections and the need to provide NIEC with sufficient resources to conduct its mandate in preparing for the next cycle of electoral activities, in line with the NIEC 2022-2026 Strategic Plan.

IESG assessed the security infrastructure, data center, and warehouse finalization works. The team identified and agreed on the remaining work that needs to be completed before the final handover.

IESG, UNSOS engineers, and NIEC Warehouse Manager agreed that the x-ray machine will be installed after work in the security room is complete. Further, NIEC Logistics Manager will oversee the cleanliness of the warehouse.

Training on Drafting Reports for NIEC

On 9 August, the IESG/UNDP team conducted a training for the NIEC staff and national advisors to improve their ability to prepare narrative and financial reports. The virtual session had 24 participants, six of which were women.

The attendees learned about types of reporting, as well as how to structure a narrative report and to use illustrations and styling while drafting the documents. The participants found the activity useful and practical. They suggested the next sessions focus on the monitoring and evaluation aspects of reporting, and to include practical examples to help establish a baseline, indicators, targets, and goals.
